

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE.

A method and apparatus for determining the receptivity of radio signals at any given receiving site in an area covered by at least one transmitter by comparing data stored and continuously updated in a receiver against data
5 transmitted, and identifying and selecting from all the transmitted radio signals a preferred radio signal.